

Is this a phish?

The screenshot shows an email window titled "File Received". The sender is "Someone_Familiar". The message body says: "Someone Familiar has just sent you the following file." Below this is a file icon for "OrdinaryLookingFile" (456kb) with "Open View Edit" links. The message continues: "Notes: Hi! Pls confirm this info is correct and respond ASAP. Thanks, S. Familiar". At the bottom of the email are left and right arrow icons.

Were you expecting a file?
Trust your instincts. If something seems phishy, it could be.

Is this the way files are normally shared?
Don't click links or files in suspicious emails.

Does this sound like the person they claim to be?
When in doubt, reach out. Call or text the sender, or visit the official website directly.

Forward suspicious messages to phishing@harvard.edu.

Small Actions.
Big Difference.
You help keep Harvard secure.